

Absolutely – as long as you have a current registration card from your country of residence.